

Licensing Terms

Holding one or more tokens of the block grants a non-exclusive, non-transferable right to use the package internally for analysis and reporting. Redistribution of raw data, resale of derived datasets or removal of provenance information requires a separate written licence from the issuer.

The licence is tied to token ownership: when the balance drops to zero, access to new versions of the package ends.